Many women have fought and died in SOF units alongside Green Berets / Rangers & combat arms units.

So if they are good enough to bleed & die with us they should be welcome to go test their grit in selection and get the same respect that comes w/ earning a beret & tab.

That said, employing women in SOF units will require nuanced leadership.

The talents of the few women who are selected & qualify will be squandered if they used in a role that any SOF man could do.

Each SOF unit has a place where a women will enhance the mission.

What is not complex is that women have been in SOF as long as we have had SOF starting with the OSS.

The doubt will take lots of time to fix. The Q had ever changing standards long before any women were allowed to attend. The addition of the 4th Bn & demand for more GBs started lots of gripes about quality over the last 2 decades.

Have people forgotten that a virus is a living entity?

As a vegan and humanitarian, I welcome all refugees of any species.

And yes, that includes the coronavirus.

I'd like to think that turkey has a plan but unfortunately they're in too deep and it won't end well. Erdogan should've allied with the U.S and turned down Iran and Russia I just don't understand what he's doing

Jihadi expansion seems like a crappy way to squander the gift of Turkey's geography.

TU is using the threat of refugees against Europe. US / NATO have the opportunity to pry TU away from RU in exchange for continued mil support.

Chaos in SY can only hurt us if we leave our troops there waiting for a confirmation w/RU

There were other arguments for Am intervention in Syria e.g. concerns about the long term stability of the Assad regime But the most pol potent centered on vengeance for what Assad facilitated in Iraq, & his alignment with Iran But it's unsurprising Obama would reject this. 1/2

A requ rement for 18F s a prior SF MOS B,C,D, or E So if a woman wants to be a F she has to do her time in another MOS 1st.

18F & 180A are the 2 MOSs not offered n the Q course. 18Fs are unique n the ntel world because they collect, analyze and act on ntel

Bush's failing was nation building in AFG/IZ.

Backing out of the JCPOA, and killing Soleimani to distract from his impeachment (while lying about the justification for that strike) do not give me confidence in Donald Trump's ability to succeed in the region. That + his fondness for autocratic rulers = bad decisions

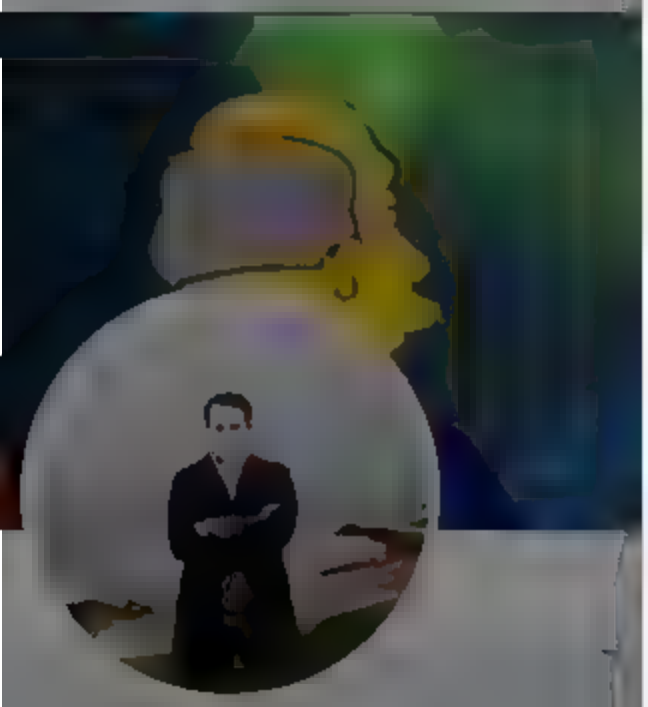
A US / western led a resolution to such places is a myth of our imaginations & probably worse for the ppl

Working w/ power brokers from the shadows & killing those who pose a external threat is all we need



There's no happy ending, so we fall for thinking we can fix it.

Before the "who lost Afghanistan?" debate gets rolling, I would love to see a list of all the pundits & officials who repeatedly said victory was possible and that the US should "stay the course," plus a list of those (of us) who said victory was unlikely & not worth the effort.

@SecPompeo I fear the establishment out maneuvered Trump again w/ the peace plan.

DOD/DOS supported Trump's desire to cut a deal to get us out of AFG w/ the caveat that if the TB don't live up to their end of the deal we go back to business as usual, DOD/S's preference.

As anyone could have predicted the TB are back at t attacking the AFG gov we are paying for

So we will return to "staying course" for a worthless place because we ack the will to try new ways of pursuing our interests.

The day we leave now or in 19 more years, the TB return

& that doesn't matter

What matters s how much we lose between now & then

The profit or war is definitely a factor. I think the largest factor is ego & inability to admit we have failed and try new methods.

The US also can't bring ourselves to go after our inserts 1st. We crave a higher purpose that rarely translates to anything but a quagmire.

Great write up. I think its overall a good thing for SF to stick with our core mission, stop trying to be another SOF element in raid game.

That said I'm guessing we are 1 crisis away from a CIF like element demanded from SF again.

We accomplished our stated mission of taking out AQ's sanctuary by mid 2002.

We refused to pursue UBL/Zawahri into Pakistan.

Fighting the TB & building a AFG has mostly been a waste.

See our efforts in Pak/Yemen for a sustainable way to fight AQ.

I've made his point before, as has @MaxAbrahms, but it continues to boggle the mind how the Afghan war has to continue because there's a theoretical possibility al-Qaida will return there, while in Syria the US must ensure that al-Qaida is not defeated.

Half the time I agree with Max, half the time I don't. Imo it's an analytical mistake to paint those different groups under the label of AQ. Those in Idlib are constrained by Turkey's power. They aren't under some global AQ command that coordinates them and Afghanistan together

That's true, and I don't think there is much of a threat from any form of al-Qaida to the United States, but point is that American government will say whatever it has to in order to keep soldiers abroad

Politica ly, yes whoever is POTUS when we eventually leave will get hit w/ the abandonment narrative

The question s what do we truly lose when we leave?

To fight AQ/terrorists who intend to attack us we don't need a huge foot print & the TB acting like savages doesn t matter

For all my non-oil peeps, an update:

A few days ago, the big OPEC/Russia meeting ended without a deal to cut production. Now Russia and Saudi, the two biggest exporters, are saying they're going to maximize production and flood the market.

So why does this matter?

This move is a response to years of frustration. as OPEC/Russia have cut, they've lost market share to US shale, which has won a big piece of the market and turned the US into a major exporter for the first time in decades

Gregory Brew @gbrew24 · Mar 7

Saudi had led the charge to cut production. But this time, Russia wasn't having it. And now the Saudis have announced big discounts on their crude, particularly the stuff they sell to the US. It's essentially a declaration of war on US producers. Expect gas prices to plummet

The US-Taliban agreement has been deeply criticized

It has also required round-the-clock diplomacy to keep its pieces together and moving forward.

Iran creates an app to try to help its citizens detect coronavirus symptoms.

But due to US sanctions, Google pulls it from the app store

US sanctions on Iran are blocking medical supplies, disinfectant, and even information.

Sanctions are war

You're willing to justify deaths of ordinary Iranian people in order to make an unclear political point, after Trump ripped up a political agreement that both Iran and the US respected until that point.

It sounds like you're the one who only understands "ruthless and cruel."

Diversionary war theory makes sense in this case, although I can't think of solid examples of this happening in the past with Iran (beyond random harassment of US ships to distract from specific domestic scandals). Are there good precedents?

No chance at all that rocket attack that killed 2 Americans & 1 Brit at Iraq's Camp Taji was done by ISIS, a security source tells me. US has captured the vehicle that launched Katusha rockets at Iraqi base but unclear if any suspects detained.

This is literally how sanctions work. The other option is a military conflict with the regime. Iran is getting medical aid that is being misappropriated by the regime and sold on the black market.

Until the regime changes or changes it's behavior this is the reality.

That ship sailed 08-10' when we prioritized granting the Iranian led gov control over the ISOF / CTS / ERU & eventually the INIS STU.

We did this to make Iraq appear to be a success in nation building.

All great points that need deep discussion.

My question - does it matter if Iraq descends into civil strife if we can contain / kill jihadis from afar who want to attack US/UK/Europe?

When we removed Saddam we drastically escalated the Shia v. Sunni civil war.

A career of failing upwards; a bureaucracy that rewards mediocrities; getting a plush government job for one's paramours while the media snuffs out the story to protect their own; massaging post-gov business opportunities—this is the 'system' that McGurk embodies.

That's fine if McGurk gets away with it. But his failings led to immeasurable human suffering. And to have the gall to spin his past as one of unblemished technocratic competency, well, that needs to be called out. Over and over again. Shame on anyone giving these types a pass.

A career of failing upwards, a bureaucracy that rewards mediocrities, getting a plush government job for one's paramours while the media snuffs out the story to protect their own, massaging post-gov business opportunities — this is the 'system' that McGurk embodies.

That's fine if McGurk gets away with it. But his failings led to immeasurable human suffering. And to have the gall to spin his past as one of unblemished technocratic competency, well, that needs to be called out. Over and over again. Shame on anyone giving these types a pass.

Great thread & article.

Iran needs Iraq more than the US does.

From US perspective we are fools not to exploit our enemy's needs, especially in places that we have minimal needs.

Our needs in Iraq are best expressed by the sunken cost fallacy not true needs.

ISIS is militarily defeated now as AQI was 07-08.

As long as the Sunnis have limited access to the economy or voice in their governments insurgency & terror will pop back up every few years.

ISIS is militarily defeated now as AQI was 07-08.

We heard & saw everything outlined in this doc during the awakening.

Shutting down smaller exposed bases makes sense if the focus is on force protection against a ramped up tempo of militia rocket strikes. Problem is I'm not sure the US will be allowed back into these sites if the threat level goes down, at least under the current Iraqi govt

Alex Mello @AlexMello02 · 21m
Pulling out of K1 sends the message US can be pushed out of smaller operating locs with enough rocket fire and leaving al-Qaim yields western Anbar and the border crossing with Syria to KH. Also may impact ops in the Syrian MERV where ISIS is highly active

Just before battle of Najaf began, CPA appointed @adnanalzurfi as Governor on 6 May 2004. Bremer announces it, wanting him to confront 'one man (referring to Sadr) and armed elements under his control', with Zurfi pledging to dissolve all militias in Najaf

There's a lot of political overtones on Zurfi's nomination that should be looked into for context. If he is confirmed, this could be a significant shift in trajectory back to pre-2018 and also leave a permanent schism among Shia parties

Zurfi will face the same challenges for confirmation as Allawi did, though he may have a few advantages. In any case, Iraq faces several crises and the question is whether Zurfi is the right person for PM and if he can make any progress in a temp government. Im not sure 🤷

Also worth noting we lost 4 Americans in Iraq this month.

2 were killed supporting Iraqi troops fight ISIS 2 were killed by Iranian militias operating w/GOI assistance.

We are bleeding for no gain & strengthening our enemies by remaining in Iraq.

Great read. I don't see how a PM with the of best intentions overcomes Iran's control of the GOI.

It comes down to simple thug math, IR controls everyone with guns & power & is willing to kill to maintain their grip.

very right probably, but the line must hold

With the fifteen-day constitutional deadline for picking a candidate set to expire, Salih did something that is very rare and risky for Iraqi politicians these days: he fulfilled his oath, played by the rules, and chose the candidate he regarded as the most qualified. The international community should remember this and support Salih at a very trying time.

There is no good answer for how the US forces in Iraq should react, if we stay, simply absorbing attacks hoping for a GOI miracle is putting our troops at risk for zero gain.

Removing our troops gives us options with minimal risk.

What should be done now? Iran is using Iraq to circumvent sanctions to continue their regional aggression The GOI won't or can't stop that.

So our other option is the use of force Sanctions are a bad option but the other options are worse

Ahmed @Akhazzar · 47m

Sanctions on Iraq won't force Iranians They are simply too proud to bow to US. It is likely to empower extremists in Iraq, help ISIS to re-emerge, pushes Iraq to the Iranian side The article mentions helping Iraq to diversify its resources as a way forward

The GOI has chosen to align with Iran & should be treated as Iran.

ISIS will re-emerge as long as IR controls Baghdad & Damascus. There are no clean non painful ways to solve Iran's aggression.

Economically choking Iran & depriving them of tgts is the best we can do.

I'm reminded of a joke told by the comedian Shecky Green, who had a well-known feud with Frank Sinatra. "Frank and I never got along, but he saved my life once. Some thugs were beating me to death in an alley, and Frank said, "That's enough, boys. I think he learned his lesson."

Let's get this right: Taking on Sadr in 2007 doesn't mean taking on Iran

Maliki used the ISF, Badr, AAH, & KH to take on Sadr

The only way to take on Iran in '20 is to marginalize Maliki, purge Badr, bring Sunnis & Kurds back into ISF, target AAH et al, & make Fatih illegal.

Definitely, we had to flatten the curve. It's just very hard to say how long we can continue to do major damage to the economy if there's no solution at the end of the quarantine.

Every day, servicemembers in Northwest Florida assume enormous risks during training exercises as they work tirelessly to enhance our military's combat readiness.

Tragically, one of our warriors stationed at Hurlburt Field lost his life Thursday during one of these exercises.

The USG's response to the crisis is due to our LDRs facing election every few years.

Locking us down JAN/FEB was not politically feasible regardless of who was POTUS.

The data at hand then did not justify crushing the economy as we are now.

Our elected officials have to make choices based on the next election & public perception this is the price of having a voice in our government.

Now the question s how much do we continue to damage our economy when there maybe no plan to beat the virus?

The reason he's using the phrase is to a) Position himself as a "wartime president" by framing it as a foreign invader, and b) Create the distraction of having people talk about whether the President is racist or not so they won't spend time talking about the mounting death toll

At the end of all of this, China will have to pay a 'wartime' indemnity for mismanaging it's early response and allowing the world's economy to buckle. They'll balk at it but it must be negotiated respectfully without demonization. Such tactics cannot be tolerated going forward.

If foreign policy types, including their globalization enthusiasts seek relevance in this new future, they should be using this time to lay out what the negotiation and scale of indemnity would look like, and who gets what. This is the future of international relations

It's easy to say that now, but in December the death rate was not clear thanks to China's lies.

Plus the Congress was impeaching him then, imagine the media if he had recommended self quarantine then.

Our system gives us freedom not guaranteed safety from all bad things.

Do you think any of our elected officials should be spend ng their time contemplating how to help other countries when we have not solved our own crisis?

We ALWAYS have. The more intense the crisis, the more important our leadership

Now there doesn't seem to be much capac ty for anything except blaming others and flailing about in ways designed not to make the President look bad.

This crisis is different, our population is larger than Italy therefore we must ensure ours are taken care of 1st.

Once we are taken care of American generously will flow as it always has.

RU/CH attempts at influence will only fool non serious ppl not NATO members like Italy.

If foreign policy types, including their globalization enthusiasts seek relevance in this new future, they should be using this time to lay out what the negotiation and scale of indemnity would look like, and who gets what. This is the future of international relations.

I disagree It will happen And I would watch Trump's branding of the "China Virus" in this respect. The damages done to world economies is massive and China wi need goodwill to dig out just as everyone But there's a price. Airlifting masks and medica teams won't cut it.

Some of it is the grass being greener on the other side.

Most is due to our election cycle, politicians need broad public support before taking drastic measures.

A public lock down in the US in DEC-FEB would not have gone over. We had to see Italy to support a shut down.

Yes a savior would be great

In reality we have elected officials who can't afford shut down the economy until there's a quantifiable threat like a large spike in deaths in another country

Imagine Trump ordering these restrictions back in Jan/feb, not justifiable at the time

So just to get this straight, the new Democratic objection to the bipartisan bill -- Schumer called it bipartisan on Saturday night -- is that it helps companies too much. Companies that will be defunct within the month, driving a 30% unemployment rate, without loan packages.

What Ben fails to mention, to intentionally mislead his audience, is that the bill was total garbage and had 500 billion to help corporations instead of people, and the use for that money was extremely undefined

Quarantined Human Scum @bgsker · 5h
Alright people let's fight. You really trust corporations to "do the right thing" and continue to pay people they already laid off?

Corporations EXIST FOR PROFIT. They will pocket the money and ride out the storm. How many more times do you need to be fooled before you get it?

No oil, especially insignificant oil fields in NE SY, is worth the loss of US life.

No oil is worth playing referee between our enemies. Let Russia get between the Turks & Assad/Iran while the SIS strikes RU not US troops.

In 03' there was an Iraqi metal show on one of the FM channels in Baghdad that played a ton of thrash & death metal, it was pretty surreal cranking slayer while we drove the war torn streets, felt like we were living in a metal video.

L.S forces are repos.tioning to bases in raq that can defend aga nst rocket attacks.

These rocket attacks are not from ISIS they are from milit.as that grew primacy under the U.S led ISIS campaign.

They grew influence under these caveats from J.S officials & thinktankers:

Most of the U.S. officials & thinktankers you describe here also supported the removal of saddam & the ba'ath party.

By 04' they realized they messed up & were eager for any Iraqi gov so they turned a blind eye to Iran's control of the best organized Shia parties.

Could it be that the denominator (number of real COVID-19 cases) is an order of magnitude (10x) higher than thought (people don't know they have it, think they have the flu, can't get tested...) so death rate is 10x lower? Isolation good but don't panic.

For context - AAH is Iranian proxy militia that killed hundreds of US troops during the Iraq war.

Most famously AAH kidnapped 4 US & them from their base & later executed them.

This operation was overseen IRGC Officer shahlai & Lebanese Hizballah operative Duq Duq.

Defeating KH via HVT methodology will not defeat it.

Moving our troops out of their range & choking off all means of funding w/occasional HVT strikes starves KH of funds & relevancy & keeps them in the shadows.

Holding the GOI accountable is the 1st step.

The GOI as it is today, even with Zurfi at the helm is still largely in the hands of Iran.

Our hesitance to disengage & punish is due to how many of our senior leaders have invested so much in the narrative that Iraq is real independent nation.

After we killed QS/AMM we took the initiative by disrupting the Shia militias leadership & ability to freely move & communicate b/c they all had to assume they were next, a huge change from the past.

We should have taken that time to move our troops out of their range.

ISF can conduct limited raids / cordon & search ops against small ISIS / Sunni targets.

If ISIS holds any significant ground ISF's response is to call for US support

ISF remain a very sectarian force that will operate effectively for Shia/Iranian dominance.

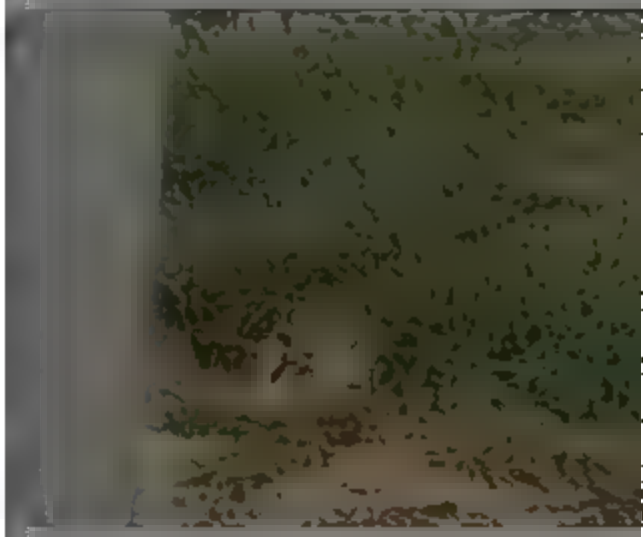
The younger Iraqis seem less sectarian, unfortunately the ISF leadership & their political masters are the same characters - answering to Iran, who have been in power since 03'.



We have poured tons of resources into ISF units & GOI w/ out addressing IR's hold on Iraq.

ISF can conduct limited raids / cordon & search ops against small ISIS / Sunni targets.

If SIS holds any significant ground ISF 's response is to call for US support.

ISF rema n a very sectarian force that will operate effectively for Shia/Iranian dominance when people do great things to help others, the media mocks their religion. imagine, if it were the reverse: someone did EVIL things, and then you mentioned their religious extremism. the media would be calling you a bigot. screw these hypocritical assholes.

Someday the historians w properly identify the great turning point in the American struggle with #COVID19 as that time the pillow guy told us to put God back in schools after k ssing the President s butt.

The my pillow guy is attempting to help by using the resources he has at hand, that should be commended.

You can still dislike or even hate Trump while commending our fellow citizens for doing their part in the time of a national crisis, the two sentiments can coexist.

Today in 1968, President Lyndon Johnson takes to the airwaves to update Americans on the war in Vietnam. He famously ends the broadcast with a bombshell: "I shall not seek, and I will not accept, the nomination of my party for another term as your president."

Why we need to target the RGC in Iran

Newly created "shell" militias are set to attack US n Iraq

These mil tias are not designated as IRGC-QF proxies Tehran th nks ts a winning distancing strategy to have them attack the US mission in Iraq

The IRGC-QF does not want

23 55 238

Michael P Pregent @MPPregent 4h

to be targeted for the actions of IRGC-QF militias Kataib Hezbollah & AAH.

KH & AAH don't want to be targeted for their actions, so they created "shel " militias to claim credit for QF directed attacks

The IRGC should be targeted in Iran for its distancing-strategy in Iraq.

With the PMU being added to the Iraqi military & Fatah & SOL in power it's harder to determine who is NOT an IRGC-QF shell/proxy/ agent than who is.

GOI needs a cntrl + alt + delate not any more US lives or $.

Iranians are people with a government that should do what's best for their citizens, not export terror.

Iran has received aid that promptly turned up on the black market while they fund their proxies.

Our kindness would be viewed by Iran as weakness.

Iran killed 2 US service members this month in Iraq & 1 US contractor in January & besieged our embassy.

Iran killed over 600 US troops during the Iraq war.

Iran has been at war with the US since 1979.

Worry about the Americans you represent. Not terrorist regimes.

I honestly don't believe any immigrant of Somalia, aka not a natural born citizen of the US should be allowed to run for public office on the grounds of their heinous nature as revealed to us in Mogadishu

Omar ought to be tried for treason due to her many ties in the East.

I'm a little late - I definitely think putting distance between us & the Middle East eliminates a good deal of the threats from that region.

We will always have some involvement there to deal w/ Iran/AQ/ISIS.

The cartels need way more attention. Geography dictates our needs.

I'm a little late I definitely think putting distance between us & the Middle East eliminates a good deal of the threats from that region

We will always have some involvement there to deal w/ Iran/AQ/ISIS

Designating Badr & Ameri will not “unite Iraqis around the flag”

Iraqis are rallying around the flag in opposition to Iran and its proxies.

These are the “arguments” - in this Thread - made to urge decision makers not to take action against Badr.

They are easily deconstructed.

Important thread

Badr was formed by the Iranians during the Iraq-Iran war for Iraqis loyal to the Ayatollah to kill their countrymen.

When we got rid of Saddam they re-branded themselves & infiltrated the GOI & became the gov face of Iran's war against the US & Iraq's people.

Max Pressure is designed for post Nov 2020.

If POTUS wins reelection, the regime will beg to renegotiate from a position of weakness.

If Biden wins, Biden will be able to renegotiate from a position of strength - it would be a mistake to reenter w/o new concessions by Iran.

KH announcement to stop attacking US forces, as lon as they're continuing their complete "withdrawal" from #Iraq

How ironic is that? @realDonaldTrump sends a strong message to Iran, they'll pay high price if our forces attacked in Iraq. Iran's puppets made this announcement

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم

"يحسبون كل صيحة عليهم هم العدو فاحذرهم قاتلهم الله أنى يؤفكون"

صدق الله العلي العظيم

في الوقت الذي يواجه فيه العالم خطر جائحة "فايروس كورونا"، ومطالبة الامم المتحدة والمنظمات الإنسانية بضرورة إيقاف الحروب التي أشعلتها قوى الاستكبار في العالم، حتى تتمكن المجتمعات من مواجهة هذا الخطر الداهم، يطالعنا بين يوم و خر الأحمق ترامب أو أحد أبواقه بتصريحات عدائية وتهديدات وقحة موجهة إلى المقاومة الإسلامية في العراق، ولاسيما كتائب حزب الله

ومع حجم المأزق الكبير الذي يمر به أميركا بعد تفشي "كورونا" في ولاياتها، بل إصابته لآلاف الجنود في بواخرها وقواعدها العسكرية فإننا ندرك طبيعة إدارة ترامب الإجرامية، ونحذر من تورط بأي عمل عدواني تجاه أبناء شعبنا الصابر وفصائله المقاومة المجاهدة

ويسمع الجميع أن أوامر رب العزة جبار السموات والأرض وما بينهما هي التي توجب علينا مقاتلة من عدانا، لا بطلب من أي طرف على وجه البسيطة، ولا بعلم نياتنا غيره سبحانه وتعالى دون ريب فوصف العدو هو المستهدف ونحن أبناؤه

وفي هذا الظرف الاستثنائي، وبعد إدراج القوات الأمريكية من بعض القواعد والمواقع فإننا نؤكد أن لا قتال لهذه الفصائل إذا سمحت أنشطتها بعد أي مغادرة العراق مغادرة كامله وما لا يفهمه هؤلاء الأوباش أن فروسيتنا المجاهدين و ثر منهم بأوامر الله تعالى لا نجيز قتل المدبر و المستعيذ

"لا يستأذنك الذين يؤمنون بالله واليوم الآخر أن يجاهدوا"

That officer got fired for bluntly stating how at risk his sailors were, and how the Navy needed to do something, and for doing it in a memorandum that could be easily leaked, whether he did it personally or not.

Basically he got fired for giving an honest assessment.

We're seeing such a large schism emerge in the military that it isn't even hidden anymore. There are the careerists trying to kill their soldiers for a star or a bird and then there are the actual soldiers and sailors. This is a cultural issue.

I think the assumption that the morbidity rate may be higher for black Americans is not crazy But that would mostly be due to higher rates of diabetes, high blood pressure. hypertension, iver/kidney ssues etc None of the things AOC cites She is such a race-bait ng charlatan

Commanders, Officers, NCOs have two missions; protect your people protect the USA. The JSA always comes first. Divulging the spread of COVID-19 on this ship weakened our presence in the Western Pacific One NEVER allows a potential enemy to know one cannot fight at 100% NEVER!

joe kent @oekent16jan19 Apr 3

Context matters, if we were engaged a naval battle I'd agree with you I'm sure the USS Roosevelt is an important ship but w/ a spreading virus it would have been taken out internally w/ out the action the skipper sought

Effective fleet leadership could have rectified this.

I have real empathy for the guy. I was "relieved" of a position I held for an e-mail misstep a number of years ago and I was not responsible for an aircraft carrier and its people It is an "F" ed situation which hopefully everyone learns from, including some Americans.

I think in these times an ass chewing for bad email cc'ing would have been the smart move by the navy, not the appearance of not caring for their ppl.

Good thread on CAPT Crozier-

The inter Navy details are important for context but at what point is this bigger than the Navy?

Even if the Navy is "right" is it worth the public seeing the DOD place regs & protocol over the lives of their sons/daughters?

I don't think it is.

Yeah, I feel bad for saying it, but the cringeworthy Crozier firing was classic Navy. If George H.W. Bush had been in the WH, it MIGHT have taken another week or two, but it absolutely still would have happened for the exact same dumb reason.

If he would have stayed on the ship, they could have kept him somewhat isolated. If he was not properly isolated right of the ship, it would be ironic that his firing and removal could risk the exposure of more people; who will be held accountable for that Bernie made a number of mistakes that I highlighted and broke down in detail. No excuses. Having said that, you're out of your fucking mind if you think I'll forget or look past 'bloody monday', aka the day Obama got Pete & Amy to drop & endorse Biden. Saving his campaign.

Let's keep it real...

The primary appeal of Biden is that he is not Trump.

That's apparently enough for millions of Americans, but it's a weak platform.

Nobody is inspired by Biden. Everyone is obsessed with Trump.

Love him or loathe him. He's a force of nature.

Bernie Sanders supporters back him because of POLICY. It's that simple. We prioritize things like:
- medicare for all
- free college
- ending wars
- GND
- criminal justice reform.
Biden's record proves that he'll prioritize & fight for NONE of these. Wake up. He's not our friend.

In March Kataib Hezbollah said Kadhimi's nomination would burn whatever remained of Iraq's stability, linking him to the deaths of Qassem Soleimani and Abu Mahdi al-Muhandis. If he is ratified between here and the May 9 deadline, he will have overcome the hardest veto imaginable.

In 2016, Kadhimi was appointed as the head of the Iraqi National Intelligence Service (INIS), the most professional intelligence agency in Iraq, with the broadest set of relationsh ps with g oba nte gence agencies, and Kadhimi practiced intensive "intelligence dipiomacy"

Kadhimi is a thoughtful, calculating Iraqi nationalist, more than capable of balancing the realities of Iran's influence as a neighbor against the strategic interests of Iraq. This is exactly what he has done at INIS since 2016 -- working within the margins, but on Iraq's side.

So what's going on with the ceasefire in #Yemen? Well, there isn't one - yet.

The good news: You can't break a ceasefire that doesn't exist.

The bad news: No ceasefire.

The UN special envoy to Yemen and Secretary General have both called for a ceasefire. And yesterday Saudi Arab a announced a unilateral halt to its military activit es in Yemen for two weeks, which it ca led a ceasefire But.

(2/10)

Peter Salisbury @peterjsa sbury · 29s

For there to be an actual ceasefire we need an agreement between the warring parties and more importantly for the fighting to stop Neither has happened In fact, since the SG s call for a freeze two weeks ago violence has intensified

So what now?

Let's not inflate the status of the "willing partner" in the ISIS campaign.

Too easy to get the GOI & ISF to target Sunnis - one man against ISIS a hero - that same man against the IRGC-QF a no-show.

Don't confuse the two - we made it too easy to earn our respect in OIR.

The GWOT put the ball in the mil's court for all things foreign policy due to a apathetic public that failed to hold elected officials accountable.

This led the mil to believe they drove policy & have pushed back when a POTUS (O & T) attempt to enact a policy they dislike.

Great read on integration I d caution tying numbers of females to success at ntegration. If CDRs see they need numbers of women in their ranks to be considered successful they w ower/change standards.

This hurts the credibility of the women who have the guts to try out

In my opinion the commanders willing to change standards just to get their female numbers up are a bigger threat to female integration than the old school haters.

Many badass women have changed the minds of haters, while the cdr willing to play w/standards erodes trust.

IS S is taking advantage of the shrink ng US footprint in Iraq & the lack of trust between the US and Baghdad after Iraq politicians and security forces caved to IRGC QF m tias post 27 December

There is limited focus on SIS because of m itia attacks on the the US mission

Once again, Sunnis that worked with the US against AQI & ISIS are alone & w/o protection.

They fear QF militias as much as ISIS & once again, blame the JS for abandoning them & growing militia primacy

Its a shame that our policy makers don't see that ISIS/AQI are symptom of our larger regional threat, Iran.

We consistently looked at counter AQI/ISIS as one fight & counter Iran as a separate fight (or TF) we did very little cause and effect analysis.

I don't think there is anything inherently wrong with a WHO. The problem is malign actors have too much influence in that organization. The relevant question is whether her assertion that occurred because we have over time reduced our participation is correct.

I think that ship sailed in 1492. Reversing 500 years of globalization is likely impossible. We can probably rebuild resiliency to shocks but Americans aren't going to want to pay considerably more than current prices for consumer goods. 70% of our economy is consumer driven.

Big Week for the AAR 'cast.

Edits should be done this week on Curt's and up wednesday at the latest. Lot of laughs and drip talk in this one.

On Monday, I'll be sitting down with SGM Vining's buddy, Stu Steinberg, to talk EOD. Check out his book:

My mother died on Saturday from coronavirus. The usual grief of death is made harder by the fact that we couldn't be physically present to comfort her or take solace by being surrounded by family and friends. It is surreal, and it is awful.

The truth about politics is that if your life sucks, it will still continue to suck even if your favourite candidate is elected.

And if your life is great, it will still be great if your candidate loses.

Outsourcing your happiness to any politician is stupid.

It's on you.

1/ In my Constitutional Interpretation course at Princeton, the first thing I do is explain the difference between the authority of the national government as a government of delegated and enumerated powers, and the authority of the states as governments of general jurisdiction.

2/ States possess police powers to protect public health, safety, and morals and advance the common good. The national government possesses no such plenary authority. Nor are the powers of the states delegated to them by, or derivative of the powers of, the national government.

3/ The Constitution's 10th Amendment is (simply) a reminder that "the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people." The second thing I do in the course is to explain

4/ the differences between executive and legislative authority. I note that the distinction sometimes becomes fuzzy at the edges, but that should not be permitted to obscure the fact that it is usually clear enough. Congresses and state legislatures ought not to try to execute

Most Americans can't wrap their heads around how cold blooded & cruel large parts of the world outside our privileged borders are.

To point out these cold blooded & cruel aspects of the world makes them uncomfortable. So it's easier to view the world as we view ourselves.

Iran's larger play was showing they can harass us in Gulf despite having a laughable Navy because Iran's most letha weapon system. their proxies. can reach us in Iraq, especially our embassy.

I don't see how we are restricting Iran at the moment. They contro the GOI/ISF and can strike us when they chose, with the proxies we are paying for

Key to changing Iran's behavior is depriving them of targets and money.

Trump has an announced strategy of disproportional response. I viscerally approve and applaud it. I think it will work but I don't know. Spit. Wondering if you think it is an impactful policy stance vis a vis Iran

Trump's max pressure and the will to hit back (Sulmani) is the best counter Iran policy the US has had since 79'.

His strategy is undermined by conventional thinking, nesting our efforts against Iran to the Iraqi gov. The establishment can't bring itself to pull chalks on Iraq

And here is the big irony

Bush and Obama administration was completely wrong and brought the Iranian regime's followers to power in Iraq

While Trump administration and especially Mike Pompeo is serious about eliminating them and cleaning Iraq from Iran-backed militias

If there was no US to hit & no Iraq gov obtain funds from Iran weakens and cannot strike us We can then sink their navy, k proxies from above etc

Agree on fighting ISIS, but not via the ISF/GOI & only ISIS that poses a threat to US/West or if ISIS controls ground. ISIS & Hashd fighting is an Iran problem.

I don't see any way to politically influence the current GOI with Fatah & SOL in power. Our leverage is cutting $$.

The selection process to become SOF is elite compared to conventional troops.

Saying a mission is elite is semantics so I see what he means.

SOF missions are special b/c they are supposed to be missions the conventional mil can't do.

So elite troops doing special missions.

@Nikki Haley is so politically ambitious that she sold her soul to the Trump team. She criticizes Biden, but totally overlooks the constant lies, total lack of leadership, and the trampling on the Constitution and rule of law by her side.

Humankind for months has faced a common foe, but multilateral institutions, like the #UN and the #WorldHealthOrganization, have failed. Unfortunately, multilateralism cannot work when malign powers, like #China, are at the center of these global institutions. #coronavirus

Plays out on SM daily Vets and SMs weigh in on m and other Nat. Sec issues that they are n no position to speak of w/any authority. Their views gain traction w/"friends" because they have served and are therefore an expert. Reinforces that civilian expertise does not matter

I agree that SMs do get away w/ opining on issues they are not "qualified" in.

Considering the track record of our natsec establishment maybe it's time to listen to those lived thru the failed policies of our experts.

Hell, I've seen sensible people advocate shooting down Russian air assets that buzz ships too closely. I'm not sure I'd go that far, but sinking an Iranian gunboat that's pointing a DShK at USN personnel is entirely within the realm of reasonable response.

No government solution, we need to vote with our views / clicks & dollars.

I don't think Americans are as dumb as the MSM / traditional media think we are.

In a few years independent jurnos on social media & podcasts will hopefully torch the media gatekeepers.

Finding an Independent these days, even on blogs etc are few and far between 90% still slant R or L. I grew up saying I was liberal but in reality it was more Libertarian, to which I'm not always 💯 with that and just say Independent. With progressions come regressions. 🟥

Joe Kent @joekent16jan19 Apr 21

I'm ok with bias as long as the jurno/outlet is honest about their world view up front. The traditional media is operating on hubris, they believe their "just the facts" BS & people who have been conditioned to believe them.

More than 100 US troops died in Iraq in April 2007. Against that backdrop, the 9 deaths at Sadah outpost didn t register in the way that the 9 deaths at Wanat the next year did (out of 15 US KIA in Afg that month) or the 4 in Niger in 2017 (out of 22 US KIA worldwide that year)

Wesley Morgan @wesleysmorgan Apr 23

Not suggesting Sadah attack warranted the same type of investigation/scrutiny that Wanat & Tongo Tongo received (nor that Wanat or Tongo Tongo didn t)

But it's important to remember the individuals who made up the mass of 100+ troops killed each month at the height of things

Craig Whiteside @CraigAWhiteside Apr 23

May was the worst month in 2007 by US KIA numbers—125 of them. I think that comes in right behind April 2004 and November 2004.

Another major issue we have is our own internal division. We need to collectively recognize China is a threat regardless of who is in the White House. Biden & his establishment ilk (R&D) have an abysmal track record of recognizing this threat.

Unconventional tactics don't work so well on the open seas. Asymmetries are much smaller when you have no place to hide. If one of those boats crosses the line it will quickly become a smoking hole in the ocean

Actually the Virus is probably the best thing to accidentally happen.

It showed us how vulnerable our supply chain is and how we desperately need to bring "critical" manufacturing back.

If anything this will hurt China s economy more than ours and make us less reliant on them.

One argument n some of the post 9/11 civmil literature s that service members & veterans have become entitled due to the AVF & pubic veneration

If you believe this claim, what are concrete behaviors or beliefs that exemplify this perceived entitlement among m /vets for you?

Entitlement by SMs is the byproduct of Americans spoiling the mil due societal guilt for most not serving in the nearly 2 decades of war (or even paying attention to it) & for older Americans how Vietnam vets were treated

If service was a common trait the entitlement would fade

I took this photo of Colonel (then LTC) Rowe at Fort Bragg in 1981. He is talking to us about his escape.
I thought I had some better photos of the man, but after so many years I cannot find them. I remember how shocked I was when I learned of his death.

More than 100 US troops died in Iraq in April 2007. Against that backdrop, the 9 deaths at Sadah outpost didn't register in the way that the 9 deaths at Wanat the next year did (out of 15 US KIA in Afg that month) or the 4 in Niger in 2017 (out of 22 US KIA worldwide that year).

Not suggesting Sadah attack warranted the same type of investigation/scrutiny that Wanat & Tongo Tongo received (nor that Wanat or Tongo Tongo didn't)

But it's important to remember the individuals who made up the mass of 100+ troops killed each month at the height of things

Excellent context and perspective. The high emotions of the Iraq war & early years of the war seemed to dull the public's appetite for war news, there were a few blips here & there but the public & our leaders have remained pretty checked out as wars grind on America has killed far more people in the middle East. Let's start with the war on Iraq & the devastating legacy that it left.

Joe Kent @joekent16 an19 Apr 22

So we should let Iran threaten our Navy? That is not how the world works.

I have a whole essay planned about this, but I may never get to write it, so here we go: It's not tradition, and it's not education. The officer/enlisted divide is a critical, perhaps the critical, component of a healthy civ-mil relationship.

Trump did what he always does: he played a single-person game of telephone, in which somebody gave him information, he processed it, and it came out of his mouth in a completely different (and bizarre) way. That doesn't mean he was recommending actually injecting Clorox, people.

This is half the crazy stuff that exits his face: somebody said something mostly reasonable, he interpreted in a bumper sticker fashion removed from the substance, and then the media ran with it as though he was making a serious policy suggestion.

317 386 4.0K

Ben Shapiro ✓ @benshapiro · Apr 24

And then they wonder why the stuff Trump says in pressers rarely becomes policy. Because it was never going to be policy! Every press conference is this, plus some media person trying to hold him to a literalist version of his bizarre off-the-cuff garbled reinterpretation.

CDQC is one more test/cut that will attract motivated guys who are more likely to excel at whatever mission they are given. It really has very little to do w/diving.

Cold War thinking. We did not beat the USSR or any of our foes w/ our ideals & freedom.

We win wars by taking what the enemy needs, in China's case it's our economic dependence & access to our free society.

We have to cut off China & make them expend more to stay afloat.

My take: The militias are competing for Iran's favor.
Khazali & Mohandes bragged their militias could wear any uniform in the ISF, & access US intel & equipment.

Be cautious of celebrating militia entry into the ISF - Badr owns the ISF & Iran owns Badr.

Lol! I'd say you have plenty opinion of it based on the fact that you had to put up with a fellow diver and their ego!!
Even dive guys who say that dive teams are outdated, will still admit they love CDQC and that the school there forges quality dudes.

Joe Kent @joekent16jan19 Apr 26

The water is just another environment SF has to operate in WIC/ scout swimmer capes should be maintained

CDQC is one more test/cut that will attract motivated guys who are more likely to excel at whatever mission they are given It really has very little to do w/diving.

Mike Nelson @mikenelson586 Apr 26

I've always thought we should go back to the model when I got to group. 1 dive team per BN w/ 2 MarOps teams that do boat stuff Guys on the Mar teams go to CDQC when ready so they can move to dive team if there is an open spot Keeps 12 CDQC grads ready for subsurface if needed

That's a long argument that is hard to get objective data on

The army messed up by conduct ng studies & trai periods, that cast a huge shadow of doubt on the women who have had the guts to try out for the army's most cha lenging schools/units

Hard to prove that claim. But the army could have prevented most of the above criticism if they would have changed nothing & just let women come out try out & be judged on the same standards as men.

Great article on USMC boot camp integration.

USMC's approach to boot vs. it's SOF or infantry integration is an interesting contrast.

Once the DOD lifted the ban on females in combat arms & SOF the USMC was quick to allow women to try out while the army conducted studies.

For clarity's sake: is lowering standards acceptable? It seems like it is, and that we just need to obscure the issue until the institution is brought to heel.

Joe Kent @joekent16jan19 Apr 28

Nope No lowered standards when commands start messing with standards the integrat on argument oses its credibility & undermines the mission & the women who have the guts to try out.

Top 3 Narratives by DOD, State, NSC, and Think Tanks on Iran's influence in Iraq and why the U.S. should accept it.

1. "Iran is a neighbor, they share a border"

Well, Iraq has 6 neighbors and not of them decide Iraq's PM, control Iraq's military, and steal Iraq's resources.

The problem is a college degree s requ red outside the m l for most decent jobs.

If you are a good NCO & are focused on doing your job well there is no t me bu it into your career to get a "real" degree, so a pencil whip TA transact on onl ne school is the most reasonable COA.

I think some of the issues w/ writ ng will get sorted out as NCOs are expected to communicate via email

But that's just writing, the NCO corps still needs to figure out a good way to educate the enlisted rank as the Os do.

More college lvl writing at NCOES perhaps. I'm not sure what the right answer is.

We are looking at Iraq conventionally. We see the GOI as necessary to our goals in Iraq & the region.

We don't need the GOI. Cancel all aid to the GOI & sanction them as we do Iran.

Fund KRG/Sunnis & shias who want to play ball for CT, ISIS & IRGC.

Iraq runs on bribes anyways, time to play the game as they do, not play the DOS s diplomat c make-believe.

The GOI is owned by Iran That ship sailed long before ISIS & PMJ

The GOI does need our $. We should not give GOI our $ while they kill us.

Americans telling their government they are unhappy with it and that they cannot be dismissed is a balance that I have not seen anywhere else, especially a war zone like Iraq. I think trying to tell the gov to reopen via a armed protest is a bit silly but it is their right.

It's clearly not Iraq not yet.

The problem is that protestors in MI (& PA etc) are arguably over-represented in our system, due to Electoral College

Rather than march, petition, advocate, sue, or run for office, they bring rifles.

It's more Tim McVeigh than Thomas Paine

Joe Kent @joekent16 an19 · May 1

How many car bombs did they set off ? Hard to make the McVeigh comparison.

It can be argued that their desire to chose armed protest is way less effective

If I was observing it in a third country as a DoD or IC employee, I'd call it a key indicator of political and social instability.

As a citizen, well it's the same. A slow burn tragedy.

Joe Kent @joekent16jan19 · May 1

In a 3rd country I'd look at it in the context of their system. like half of Baghdad shooting in air = an attack or did they just win the world cup?

As a citizen I'm predicting the protesters will have their day & the gov will strike a compromise between lock down & full reopening

Is Iraq becoming a "State Sponsor of Terror"?

Yes

Baghdad funds & provides training to militias loyal to Iran that are killing Iraqis & Americans - they fund them with U.S. aid meant for all Iraqis.

These militias are designated terrorist groups & they are on the GOI payroll.

Friday night thoughts

It makes me nuts that people are hating on the DoD because the blue angels are doing flyovers. I mean, I guess I understand that it doesn't materially help the health issue, but these guys are pilots, not doctors.

We are all struggling in one way or another and since we can't go to an airshow to feel better, let the airshow come to us. It's a good fucking thing and it's only in America that such a thing could happen.

There are zero reasons to bring a rifle to a peaceful protest at a state house. Zero other than sheer intimidation What are they going to do, shoot the virus? I watched people just like these come to my home in Charlottesville They are anything but promoting peace.

Have they shot anyone? There is a massive difference between bearing arms as per the constitution & abusing them.

It's done for no other reason than int midation. None. What does bearing arms have to do with protesting an order to stay home? They have absolutely nothing to do with each other Ask yourself f they could have achieved their purpose without bring ng one firearm with them?

Joe Kent @joekent16 an19 May 1

That is all semantics, I would not go to a protest n my kit but its their right.

If was observing it n a third country as a DoD or IC employee, I'd call it a key ndicator of political and social instability

As a c tizen, well t s the same A slow burn tragedy.

In a 3rd country I'd look at in the context of their system, like half of Baghdad shooting in air - an attack or did they just win the world cup?

As a cit I'm predicting the protesters will have their day & the gov will strike a compromise between lock down & full reopening.

While serving in Iraq & other places I saw governments rule with a iron fist or some form of armed nsurrection/terror due to a weak state.

We are observing Americans exercising their rights peacefu y the world is watching because these rights are sacred and unique.

Look at those wings! The SAS & SOE linage is alive today n SOF world wide. I was always very impressed working with our UK counter parts, they a ways seem to be at the fore front of SOF

When I was a team leader I loved that the artwork in the 3rd BN conference room was a painting of the LRDG on patrol in N Africa. Not our direct ineage, but our forefathers in desert SOF
